

Announcement to Readers, Authors, Reviewers and the General Public

The Journal of Education, Humanities and Sciences (JEHS), will be known as Journal of Humanities and Social Sciences (JHSS), from January 2022: JHSS will receive manuscripts from fields in Humanities and Social Sciences. Kindly be informed that JHSS maintain the same status (International) and serialization as JEHS.

Editorial Note

Change in Name and Scope: Bright Future for Researchers

The Journal of Education, Humanities and Sciences (JEHS) has been changed to Journal of Humanities and Social Sciences (JHSS). The change in name and scope is effective January 2022 in time for release of the first volume of 2022. This change has been carried out to not only narrow the scope and hence make Journal more acceptable to major databases but also effectively share knowledge/skills in the fields of Humanities and Social Sciences. In addition, narrowing scope will enhance the Journal's visibility and competitive edge as it publishes on a focused area at greater depth, thereby attracting larger readership.

We would like to inform all our esteemed readers, authors, reviewers and the general public that the new Journal will carry on publishing under the same series and status i.e. maintain serialization and International status. Furthermore, like JEHS, the JHSS will continue to be indexed in EBSCO and AJOL.

The new Journal will publish biennially and receive manuscripts from traditional areas of Humanities and Social Sciences as well as Multidisciplinary fields like Political Science, Economics, History, Geography, Archeology, Ethnological Studies, Development Studies, Sociology, Language in Education, Public Administration, Religion, Linguistics Etc.

With bearing set on a bright future, we warmly invite readers, authors and reviewers to actively contribute towards the success of the newly launched Journal of Humanities and Social Sciences.

Issued by:
Dr. Julius Mbuna
Associate Chief Editor